A message from the Dean...

Fantastic is the only word to describe the recent Phantasmagoria concert given at South Church to celebrate the spirit of Halloween and try to bring organ music to the general public. Nearly 200 witches, queens, goblins, assorted creatures and humans walked into the lovely neo-Gothic sanctuary dominated by a wall of golden pipes front and center above a three-manual Austin organ with more sounds than you could dream possible. The console was bedecked with cobwebbery underneath the gaze of a particularly magnificent black raven perched above the keyboards. As the hour approached, a hooded ghoul came out and lit the candles and a hush fell over the revelers as the lights dimmed and a white-wigged J. S. Bach appeared to begin the program with his famous Toccata and Fugue in D minor. Then a very young but hideous witch took over and delivered a spine-tingling movement from Vierne... followed by the Mountain King and his priestly friend to play Edvard Grieg. TV shows, the Munsters' theme, the William Tell Overture, and a magnificent finale from PDQ Bach with a variety of orchestration rounded out the evening. At one point a little old church lady took everyone's breath away with a "Fantasy on the name BACH" to which she invited audience participation in the form of howling. It was a howl indeed. Bravo! The organ was never creepier or funnier thanks to Peter, Monica, Larry, Larry, Eugenia and Grant.

But underneath all the magic of the evening is the unspoken question: are creep shows and silent movies (also very popular) the only way people hear this magnificent instrument anymore? Newer churches frequently feature high-tech sound systems and praise bands, while many older churches are closing and their organs are being dismantled. Sadly, some of the organs in this area have real cobwebs, not the dramatic fake ones of the South Church event. Not even one National Public Radio station in Massachusetts carries PipeDreams, a nationally produced radio program that features classical organ music. The good news is that you can listen to PipeDreams any time you wish, AND you can help promote interest in classic organ by placing the following paragraph in your church bulletin for the next six weeks or so. Try it. People interested in the organ music you play may not know about PipeDreams.

Enjoy organ music in its infinite variety on PIPEDREAMS from American Public Media available online at any time (24/7). Each week a new two-hour program appears on the website and hundreds of past broadcasts are accessible in the PIPEDREAMS program archive at www.pipedreams.org.

Monica Czausz and Peter Beardsley played Wagners "Ride of the Valkyries."

Next Chapter Event: Pastor-Organist Dinner, Monday, November 15, 2010 at 6 p.m. at Wilbraham United Church

ABOUT THE PASTOR-ORGANIST DINNER by Karen Banta

The Pastor-Organist Dinner is a traditional event of AGO chapters. "Shouldn't that name be the other way around?" asked my new rector, when I invited her. Well, read The American Organist, and that's what it's always called. Our Springfield Chapter usually hosts this event every other year. The Pastor-Organist Dinner has several purposes: a relaxing time with one's colleagues, the opportunity to meet new people, a good meal. (Remember the Polish dinner at Sacred Heart of Jesus in Easthampton, prepared by its priest, complete with printed wine list?) A main goal is to offer an after-dinner program of interest to both musicians and clergy.

The Rev. Ted Thornton, this year's speaker, possesses a rare skill set and a fascinating program. He is an Episcopal priest and a speaker of Arabic. Ted has been teaching Religious Studies and History at Northfield Mount Hermon School in Gill since 1977. He also teaches Arabic and recently completed translating a book on the concept of tolerance in Islamic thought. Ted will present a short PowerPoint program called "Introduction to Islam." This includes audio clips of chanting, noting the significance of rising and falling pitches. Images of holy sites, architecture, and calligraphy will be shown. I've been fortunate to have seen Ted's presentation once before (he is the Chaplain of my chapter of the Society of the Companions of the Holy Cross), so I highly commend it to you and your clergy. Islam is foreign to most of us, and people like Ted can help shine a light on its mysteries.

By the way, the Pastor-Organist Dinner is open to anyone. So if you don't have a pastor, please come yourself, and feel free to invite a partner/spouse, friend, non-member organist, choir singer, or anyone interested. The registration form is included with this newsletter.

AN INTERVIEW WITH SCOTT BAILEY, CAGO

by Karen Banta, Membership Chair

One of our new members—and we hope to feature others, too—is Scott Bailey of Westfield. Like many musicians, he holds multiple positions. Scott is Staff Accompanist at Westfield State University and Accompanist of the Hampshire Choral Society. He is Music Director at First Congregational Church of North Adams, UCC, a post he held pre-college (1996-99) and returned to (2004-present). Scott is a Dual Member with the Berkshire Chapter. Welcome, Scott!

KB: When and how did you start playing the organ?

SB: I started to play at the age of 11. I had taken piano for about 4 years by that time and the organist in my church at the time, (Tom Frost) decided to have me try out the organ. I began taking lessons and even attended the Pipe Organ Encounters that were held in 1992 and 1993 in North Andover, MA. After that, I took lessons regularly with Dr. Dwight Killam, often taking part in Berkshire Chapter AGO events.

KB: What's the funniest, worst, or most moving experience you've had as an organist?

SB: Maybe this counts as the most moving, but I would say that my most rewarding experience so far has been taking the Colleague Exam this past May. My interest in the organ had waned throughout the 00's, but deciding to take the exam put me back on the organ study track. It gave me an opportunity to reconnect with organ playing in a way that I hadn't felt in years.

KB: What inspired you to join the Springfield Chapter, and what are you hoping to gain from membership?

SB: Since I live in Westfield and work in Berkshire County, I wanted to broaden my connections with organists beyond the Berkshire Chapter. I also wanted to know more about organ events in the Pioneer Valley and possibly, at some point in the future, have the connections necessary to search for a position in the area. I am certainly interested in learning about what the Springfield Chapter does in terms of outreach and education about the organ, particularly to students (not necessarily organ students).
