Dean's Message:

November is a month that we fall back with our clocks, enjoy the last bits of Fall color and for us church musicians, Christmas is becoming a more present thought.

In one of the messages from "National", a question was asked about whether we are inclusive in our work as an educational institution. Do we represent the entire organist and music director population? One of the greatest training grounds for me was playing at a reformed temple for about ten years. I learned several things: There are many similarities in liturgical practice between reformed Judaism and my own Christian denomination (Episcopalian) including traditions, use of a prayer book and some elements of theology. Improvisation is a key element to Jewish and Episcopal Cathedral liturgies. We need to look for these similarities in our divided world to try to bring people together. In Jewish worship the organ has not had a prominent place except in 19th century reformed traditions where the organ came into use by Christian influence. This was mostly in Germany and later was brought to the US in urban areas. Attention to these traditions is important if they are to survive. Consider adding a Jewish choral piece such as SIm Shalom or Aveinu Malkeinu by Max Janowski or other Jewish choral works.

On Sunday November 20, 2022 at 4 PM our chapter will host a meeting for all members to welcome new members to the Springfield Chapter. I encourage everyone to attend for an interesting informative evening with chapter member Dlck Damon, organist at Grace Episcopal Church Amherst, MA and tracker organ builder, Stephan Maier. This promises to be a great opportunity to hear the Stuart Organ Co./Richard Hedgebeth organ, a locally built instrument and builder from the early days of the revival of classic organ building. I didn't know Mr Hedgebeth but he worked with major tracker builders of the Boston School and was a part of the revolutionary approach to organ building. More details for the meeting are available in this newsletter.

Many thanks to Larry Picard, Michael Carney, South Church and Trinity Methodist for helping to organize our Halloween Program and we are sorry to hear of the failure of the Trinity organ. Hopefully we can regroup to have the event next year.

Thanks to all that help our chapter be successful including board members and program organizers. We need our members to come out to programs to be successful. Please let us know if there are any that we can support and ones that are meaningful for our membership.

A closing note that we will need to reschedule our chorale festival slated for April. Stay tuned. If anyone would like to help with programs please let a board member know. I hope to see everyone on Nov. 20 in Amherst.

Happy Pipings!

Todd

Concert Review / Albert Schweitzer Organ Festival

Many of our colleagues gathered in the Mortensen Hall at the Bushnell Center for the Performing Arts in Hartford, CT to experience the Organ Extravaganza on October 22! This concert was the conclusion of this year's Albert Schweitzer Organ Festival. The Orgelkids kit, a portable, educational 2-rank 2-octave pipe organ was in the lobby for demonstration. A pre-concert talk was the spoken overture to the concert.

"Symphony Number 3 in C minor" by Camille Saint-Saens began the concert, majestically performed by Alexander Pattavina, the 2019 Festival winner. Alexander was enthusiastically called back to the organ for an encore performance. A brief film wonderfully summarized the story of The Festival. Christopher Houlihan, Artistic Director of The Festival introduced the 3 finalists who competed earlier in the day and the jury members. The first, second and third prizes were awarded to Bruce Xu, Aletheia Teague and Theodore Cheng. Watch for these talented musicians in the years to come! Paul Jacobs who was the first winner of The Festival in 1998 gave a stellar performance of J S Bach's Prelude and Fugue in A Minor BWV 543 (even without his organ shoes that he forgot to pack). Paul continued the thrill ride playing the stunning "Once Upon a Castle" by contemporary composer Michael Daughtery. The piece's 4 movements musically pictured the Hearst Castle in San Simeon, California. Over the years the Albert Schweitzer Organ Festival has attracted an increasing presence with young organists in the organ world.

Pipe Screams turns into "Nightmare on Sumner Ave."

When the announcement came that Pipe Screams was cancelled at the last minute due to organ failure, many of us were anguished at the thought of all that rehearsal time and effort without a performance and even worse was the immediate anxiety over the fate of the Boar's Head comeback. Three main questions persist: What happened? Can it be fixed? Will the Boar's Head Festival be able to proceed? In a telephone conversation yesterday, Michael Carney, minister of music at Trinity United Methodist Church on Sumner Ave., answered all three. 1. In the course of having the organ tuned for the concert, a leak was discovered in the main reservoir of the wind chest. Foley-Baker diverted from organ tuning to fix the leak,

2. The main reservoir and the high pressure reservoir (both installed at the same time) are now being hauled off to the company for a complicated and expensive renovation/replacement, estimated at four weeks and $26,000 attempted to patch the leak discovering that the ribs were blown on all four sides of the great reservoir that supplies 90% percent of the air, which in turn caused the blower to overheat and close down.

3. Michael and the wonderful folks at Trinity have faith that all will be restored for Christmas and the Boar's Head. So yes, do go ahead and buy your tickets for this year's festival—It's going to be fabulous under the new and very capable direction of Michael Carney. 'The Nightmare on Sumner Ave.' will transform, then, into the beauty of the Christmas story told in fine medieval style through song and dance. You won't want to miss it.

A heartfelt message from Alan Dickinson

Sadly, St. Paul Lutheran Church in East Longmeadow is closing after the service on November 6, 2022. The church has existed for over 130 years, founded by Swedes who came to work in the brownstone quarries. I served as organist and choir director there for 32 years, retiring in 2014, although Betsy and I have continued our membership there and kept singing in the choir until COVID hit.

There are two happy notes to report. One is that our building will continue to be used as a church by one of the groups that has recently been sharing some of our space. The other is that our wonderful Southfield organ is being gifted to St. Peter's Lutheran Church of Harwich where it will be re-installed sometime in the next year or so. That happens to be the church Betsy and I attend when we are at the Cape, so there's a good chance I'll get to play it again!

But there's another issue, which is the real reason for this article. I have been working on the closure committee and one of my tasks has been to remove the whole library of choir music. I have transferred all the files to my home in Wilbraham and created a listing of all the titles attached to this chiff chat. We are hoping that some of this music can find a new home, so I would like to invite anyone who is interested to look at the list I've prepared (see attachment) and contact me if you think you might like to have some of the files. Please email me at anbdickinson@charter.net or call me at 413-596-9648 and we can arrange a time for you to come over to my house, look at the music, and take whatever you want. There is no charge, but you will have to make arrangements for moving the music

A VERY SPECIAL THANK YOU TO THE SPRINGFIELD AGO

On Sunday afternoon, October 16th, Monica Czausz Berney performed a concert to celebrate the restoration of the Johnson & Son Organ, Opus 781, 1892. She chose a variety of pieces to "show off" the glorious sounds of our instrument. All the stops were pulled and the power and potential of the Johnson were on full display. The program began with Fanfare for the Common Man, by Aaron Copland, followed by Sonata per Organo, No. 2 by Paul Hindemith. As she explained prior to her next number, Sei gegrusset, Jesu gutig, BWV 768 by Johann Sebastian Bach has anywhere from eleven to fifteen variations and she played them all with passion. Roulade Op.3 No. 9 by Czechoslovakian composer Seth Bingham was a fanciful piece which made the audience want to dance! The fine sounds of romanticism were apparent in Sechs Stucke fur Klavier, Op. 118 by Johannes Brahms. The piece consisted of Intermezzo in A minor, Intermezzo in A major and Ballade in G minor. Many people in the audience were spiritually moved especially by the last piece Finale from Sunday Music which depicted musically the war between good and evil. As Monica explained, the piece ends with Salve Regina and gives us hope that someday good will triumph forever. Betty Manzi, long time Monson resident and former organist at First Church, described the concert as "DAZZLING.

Special appreciation was expressed to the Community Preservation Committee and the residents of the Town of Monson for allocating the funds to First Church for the restoration of the wind supply of the organ. A power point presentation of the restoration was created from the documentation provided by Czelusniak et Dugal, Inc. who dedicated a year to the project. The video which will be posted on the First Church web site was created by church members and will be available for all to see on the First Church web site.

The concert was funded by grants from the Monson Cultural Council, the American Guild of Organists, Springfield Chapter, and from many Angel Sponsors from First Church and the surrounding communities. The Music Committee provided the refreshments for the reception; there were lots of cookies and a delicious punch. The concert was attended by at least 200 people filling the church for a memorable afternoon of celebration.

YOU ARE INVITED @

The Northampton & District Organist Association in good old UK, our sister chapter, is sponsoring a showing of a new feature documentary "Organ Stops – Saving the King of Instruments" on Saturday 19th November at 7pm UK time, 2pm Eastern. More details are on the attached flyer attached to this newsletter – the film is about the issue of how to preserve and celebrate pipe organs in the current environment.

The film runs for approximately 70 minutes and will be followed by an online discussion with the film-maker James Dawson and the organ-builder Martin Renshaw, and will include a discussion of the new charity Pipe Up for Pipe Organs. A trailer for the film is at https://vimeo.com/579930833 and details of the Pipe Up for Pipe Organs charity at PIPE UP FOR PIPE ORGANS | Heritage charity fighting to save the King of Instruments (pipe-up.org.uk).

Springfield AGO members are very welcome to join the event, our English colleagues hope that it might be of interest to all of us. It's great to live in an age when we can readily share such events of mutual concern simultaneously. The Zoom link for the meeting is as follows:
